

Dave Barthelmy

From: news@aamineralspecimens.com
Sent: Wednesday, June 24, 2009 09:08 PM
To: dbarthelmy@webmineral.com
Subject: Update 24th June 2009

Dear Dave Barthelmy

Again our scouring of the media has rewarded us with the story of some earth science drama in Canada. A meteorite fall has occurred near Lake Simcoe in Ontario and a search is underway for fragments. One commenter has claimed that the area is known for Sasquatch sightings. Given the nature of the event may we suggest that the meteorite hunters keep a wary eye out for Daleks and Vogons that may also have arrived.

You can find a link to the article on our Latest Update page.

Cheers Susan and Bruce