Subject: * The 2nd Best Offer Mineral Auction is OPEN! *

Make your best auction offer and see what happens!

Auction #2 is now online and ready for bids! 30 great looking mineral specimens in all sizes and price ranges are offered this time around. Once again, here are the rules for the auction just in case anyone is wondering how the auction works:

1. High quality mineral specimens will be offered with their original retail prices.
2. A Suggested Opening Bid Price Level will be given for guidance. This will usually be set at about 50% of the original price, depending on the specimen.
3. You can either use this price level for your opening bid or enter your own offer above or below the suggested level. Please enter the offer that you feel will give you the best chance of winning the specimen you're targeting. An offer that is placed too low will usually increase activity and competition and lower your chances of winning without a higher bid. An offer that is so low that it is unrealistic in regards to the value of the auction specimen will receive an e-mail with a counteroffer for guidance.
4. Please consider each specimen carefully and submit your best opening bid offer. Once your bid is placed, the auction for that item begins and anything can happen so keep checking back! This auction will close on March 16th.

If you have any questions regarding the new rules, please e-mail.

Good luck!

Kevin
