Dear David A.,

Our Featured Mineral of the Month for December is Apophyllite and Stilbite. These clusters of Apophyllite and Apophyllite make for nice display pieces. Specimens are available with or without the peach-colored Stilbite. Some of the specimens also have a dark-gray matrix of altered basalt. The locality is from a leading source of zeolite-mineral specimens, the Mumbai District in the Deccan Traps of India.

The Offerings for this month include a favorite of Mineral of the Month Club members, pink and/or green Elbaite in milky white Quartz from Brazil that was featured last December. To add to the mix we also have a fossil from France, as well as composite specimens with unusual and pleasing color combinations. The green Apophyllite and peach-colored Stilbite are a nice compliment to this months featured mineral.

"This month, my favorite is the Tremolite from West Pierrepont, New York. Being a native New Yorker I love to discover what beauties the state has to offer. West Pierrepont is considered to be one of the best representative localities of the widespread tremolite mineralization in St. Lawrence County, N.Y." Christine
